DIED AT CAYCE

Mrs. Ann McGee, well known as Mrs. Willie McGee, died early last Saturday morning at the home of her son, Louis Atwell, at Cayce. Mrs. McGee was 74 years old, and death was due to the complications of old age, she having been bedridden for the past eleven months. She was one of the oldest citizens of the county and well known all over it, both here and at Fulton, and a woman of splendid christian character. She spent the most of her life in the Cayce vicinity and was one of its most beloved citizens. Mrs. McGee had been married three times and is survived by three sons—Sid Royster, residing a few miles east of Hickman; J. F. Royster of Fulton, and Louis Atwell of Cayce, with whom she resided, and two step-sons, John R. and Will McGee of near Fulton, and a large number of grandchildren. Burial was made last Saturday at the Cayce cemetery.

The store building formerly occupied by Rice's Shoe Store is being painted and otherwise improved and Bob Hickman says he will have a new stock of goods to go in it in the near future. He is a good business man and we wish him luck in his new undertaking here. It is much more encouraging to see new stores coming in than old stores going out. I. Goldberg's store will also be opened in the near future.

Mayor T. T. Swayne has something like 100 names signed to the charter for a new city. It is a beautiful prospect, and it will be a great honor to Hickman if it will be a city. But they want one and Mayor Swayne has done some hard work in getting the list up.

The street leading from the Fulton building to the curve near the water tank going west has been resurfaced during the past week and is in good shape now. Several other places have been repaired during the last few days and R. M. Esler says street work will begin right away.

Pat Leary, engineer on the N. & W. St. L. received word yesterday on arriving at the end of his run here that his son had been drowned while swimming in the Cumberland river. He immediately returned home on the 2:30 train. The boy was 19 years old.

FOLLOW ORIGINAL PLANS IN BUILDING

School Board Will Borrow Money to Complete New Schools as Specified.

Bonds were issued by the local school board recently in the sum of $20,000 for the purpose of building a new school building on college hill and adding to the building in West Hickman. Plans and specifications were submitted by an architect and contractors bid on the work. The lowest bid however, was between $15,000 and $20,000 in excess of the amount of the bonds.

The school board was confronted with the choice of building these new school buildings without the water works and heating plant and other conveniences, which could be done with the $20,000 or borrowing the balance of between $15,000 and $20,000 and completing the building as specified. They chose the latter alternative.

In borrowing the money, notes have been made for $3,000 each and these are to be signed by at least ten men.

The architect and contractor are to be in Hickman today to meet with the board and it is expected that work on the buildings will begin at once.

BIBLE CLASSES GIVE FISH FRY.

The Men's Bible Classes of the Hickman and Fulton Methodist Churches held their annual fish fry at Handy Pond last Thursday. About two hundred men from both classes were present and plenty of fish was on hand to satisfy the appetites of the entire crowd. After dinner speeches were made by several of the men oratorical of the crowd, and games were played by those who felt that they had not reached an age that would forbid such strenuous exercise. A big time was reported by every one.

WEATHER DRY BUT "FITTING"

The weather of the past week has been very disagreeable, especially on the highways and county roads, where it is several inches deep. The dry weather of the past four weeks, however, has been very beneficial to the farmers threshing their wheat and those cutting alfalfa hay. The second crop of alfalfa was cut last week and this week and while corn and cotton were reaching a point where rain was needed, the dry weather meant everything to the wheat and hay. The alfalfa crop this year, like the wheat crop, is said to be unusually fine.

Mrs. S. M. Powell has returned from a visit with her brother, Robert George, in Mounds, Ill.

Nearly two million tons of sand is used in the United States each year in making glass.

Miss Edna Rice and sister are visiting Mrs. N. D. Head in the upper bottom.

EVERY VOTER MUST REGISTER

July 10th and 11th Named as Dates For Statewide Registration.

On July 10th and 11th every qualified voter in the state of Kentucky, male and female will be required to register. If they expect to vote in the regular November election this year, this registration will suffice for all time for those registering, and it will not be necessary again to register as long as the qualified voter remains in that precinct.

Registration of qualified voters applies to those of the city and county precincts. Without registration it will be impossible to take part in the election in November, or any primaries preceding or following. Three days are fixed for the registration this year, the third being set for 60 days preceding the November election. In years following this, there will be one registration day, the second Monday in July of each year. This is for those who have reached their majority or may have moved from one precinct to another, or into the state and become qualified voters.

It is estimated by the county officials that the registration will cost the county less than $800 the first year and less than one-half of that amount each succeeding year. It is believed by politicians that it will obviate much irregularity in voting and that dishonest elections will be a thing of the past. The law was passed at the last session of the legislature.

Some few changes have been made in the division of this county into precincts, which may be noted from glancing over the notice of precinct changes published by the county in The Courier this week and the two weeks previous.

ICE CREAM SUPPER AT RUSH CREEK

The ladies of the Rush Creek Church have advertised an ice cream supper to be given at the church Saturday evening, July 1st. Bills which have been printed announcing the supper state that ice cream and refreshments of all kinds will be served, and if you feel like getting out and enjoying yourself after the week's grind, you might go out and partake of some of the nice things these good ladies will have prepared for you.

Wheat is being threshed every day around Hickman now and all the farmers report an extra fine quality and a much better yield than the ordinary. Cotton is also looking fine. Corn is good but needs a rain.

Suddenly her heart turned to water; some tiny sound in the silence warning her that some one had entered. She turned, discovered here in the very center of his own private apartment. He was standing not three feet away from her. For a second they stared at each other with a sort of mutual repulsion.

"Hello!" he said, then, matter-of-factly, "I brought home a letter to-night; I wanted to see it. I left it in the post box."

He stepped to the dressing room, and looked in a pocket without moving his pleasant look from her.

"Giving my mother the letter, too?" he said.

"Nina left the door open. I have never been in here before," Harriet said, trying to make her voice as casual as his.

"I have been in here before," he said, "but I have never seen you."

HARRIET AND THE PIPER

truth. Harriet, turning, faced her between two curtains of rippling gold. She saw a new Nina, a subdued, thoughtful, serious woman in the old confident Nina's place.

"But first I ought to tell you that I was with Amy today," Nina said. "Oh, Nina! Must we have that sort of thing?" Harriet reproached her. But she was puzzled by Nina's manner. "Back to school-girl tricks!" she said.

"Never back to a school-girl!" Nina said, passionately. "I'll never be that again. Harriet," she went on, "I've written Royal three times, since my birthday, and I've seen him twice."

"You saw him today?" Harriet ventured.

"I went there this afternoon," Nina admitted heavily. Then suddenly, "Harriet, did my father pay him—did he take money—to break our engagement?"

"Nina, what a horrible thought! Of course not!" Harriet could not but answer in perfect honesty.

"Oh, Harriet," the girl caught her hands, turning sick and imploring eyes toward her. "Are you sure?"

"Nina, dear, your father would have told me."

"He might not—he might not!" Nina said, feverishly. "But if he did—!"

She whispered, half to herself, "That's Phlegm, I ring for her," she said, of a knock on her own door. "Ask my father to come up with you?" she said to the maid, when Phlegm appeared.

"We'll settle it now!"

"Mr. Carter is just coming up," Phlegm said. And a moment later Richard, with an interested face, came through Nina's room, and joined them. Harriet had had time only to knot her hair back carelessly, and slip into the most formal of her blue Chinese coats.

"Father," Nina said, when they three were alone together. "Did Royal Blonddin take a check from you ten days ago?"

Richard, taken unaware, glanced sharply at Harriet, who shook her head, with an anxious look. He sat down beside Nina on the bed, and put a fatherly arm about her.

"Ah, Father, don't put me off!" the girl begged. "I wrote him, after my birthday," she said, "and told him that money made no difference to me. He didn't answer. Then I got Bruce Hopper to ask his mother to have Blonddin meet her at the club for tea, and I saw him then. Bruce," Nina said, still in the now self-contained tone "has been wonderful about it!"

"I know he only seems a silent sort of boy, but I'll never forget what he's done for me! Royal," she resumed, "didn't want to see me, and said he had promised Father that it was over. He—but I needn't tell you all he said. It sounded—so false!" she whispered, bitterly. "So I went to his studio to-day."

"And—there were two or three women there, but it wasn't that. They were—well, perhaps they were just having fun. But—" And Nina looked pitifully from Harriet's sympathetic face to her father's troubled eyes. "But I've not been having much fun," she faltered, with a suddenly trembling mouth. "I've been planning—praying—that somehow it would come out right. He told me today that he had promised not to see or speak to me for two years," she said, slowly. "I—"

Father, I knew that he had a reason! He was changed. I never saw him so! And two hours ago," she pointed to the door that led into her father's room, "two hours ago I went in there."

She said, "And I looked over your own check book. Father, did you write him a check? Was that the stub that had 'R. B.' on it?"

Richard looked at her sorrowfully. "I'm sorry, Nina," he said, simply. "I told him you should not know, from me! I would have spared you that."

For a few minutes there was silence in the room. Then Nina said bravely, through tears:

"I don't know why you should be sorry for what will save me months of slow worry, all at one blow! You and Harriet needn't worry any more. I'm cured. I've been a fool, let him flatter me and lie to me," said this new Nina, with bitter courage, "but I'm over it now. I'm sorry I gave you much trouble, Father—"

"My darling girl," her father said, tenderly. "I only wish I could spare you all this!"

"Better now than two or three years after we were married," Nina said. "Plenty of girls find it out then! Father, I want you to get that check, through the clearing-house, for me," she said, heroically, "and I want to keep it. If ever I'm a fool about a man again, I'll take it out and look at it!"

"I have it! I told Fox to get it to-day," Richard said. "You shall have it!"

Nina had turned suddenly white; it was as if a last little hope had been killed.

"You have it!" she whispered. "He cashed it, then?"

"He cashed it the next morning," Richard said. Nina was silent for a moment.

"How you must laugh at me, Harriet!" she said then.

"I? Laugh at you!" Harriet said, stricken. "My darling girl, I am the last woman in the world who could do that! I was only your age, Nina, when I was told that story. Why, I—"

Nina, you're but eighteen, after all; you'll have many and many an affair before the right man comes along."

Harriet said, "You'll look back on this some day, and say, 'It was an experience, and I learned from it.' It is only going to make me happier and more sure when the man whom I really love comes to me!"

Nina, sitting between Richard and Harriet on the bed, looked wistfully from one face to another.

"I'll try to make it so, Harriet," she said. And something thinly she added, "Father—said Harriet—shall you feel dreadfully if I say that I don't want to go to Brazil? I'll tell you why. Ward is going out to the Gardner ranch, and Bruce is going, too, and it seems to me that riding and camping and living in the open air will be—well, will seem better to me than just being on the steamer! I dream of seeing strange places and meeting people!"

said Nina. "The Gardner girls were simply darling to me the term they were in school, and—don't you remember, Harriet—we were the only people who took them out for Christmas and Easter holidays, and they like me."

And—if you wouldn't be too disappointed, Harriet, I believe I would like it better."

"My darling girl," Harriet said, warmly, "you must do what seems right to you. But you won't need me?" she added, merrily.

"Well, you see Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Hopper are sisters," Nina explained, readily, "and they'll be with us. But if you'd like to come—we are going camping in the most glorious canyon that you ever saw!"

Nina interrupted herself with sudden enthusiasm. "And I am so glad I really can ride! I'd feel so horrible if I couldn't!"

"I think you'll have a wonderful two months of it," Harriet said, "and then Grandpa'll be coming West, to spend the winter in Santa Barbara, too! And now, Nina love, it's after eleven o'clock," she ended with a change of tone, "and you have had a terrible day! We will have to do some more shopping tomorrow afternoon, and try on the riding habits, and do a thousand things. And Nina," Richard heard her add tenderly, when his daughter had given him a rather sober good-night kiss at the door of her room, "when ever you feel sad and depressed about it, just remember to say to yourself, 'This won't last! In a few months the sting will all be gone!'"

"Nina is in safe hands," Richard said to himself, thankfully, as he closed the door. He carried a memory of Harriet's earnest eyes, her low, eager voice, her encouraging arm about Nina's shoulders.

They were all at breakfast when he came down the next morning. His mother, to one of her lady, flowing robes she always wore before noon, laid down a letter half-read, to smile at him. Ward, his dark head very sleek above his informal summer costume, was deep in talk with Bruce Hopper, who had evidently ridden over from the country club, and was in a well-fitting, shabby jersey that became his somewhat lanky frame. Nina, somewhat silent, but interested in everything, wore an expression of quiet self-possession that her father found touching. Nina was growing up, he thought.

Completing the group, and reclining at the foot of the table, was the radiant Harriet. She looked as fresh as one of the creamy rebus that were massed in the dull blue bowl before her, her shining hair framing the dusky forehead like dull gold wings, the frail sleeves of her blue gown falling back from her rounded arm.

"You're late, my son!" said Madame Carter, as he kissed her temple.

"Never mind," Harriet said serenely. "I've just this instant come, and he saves my face! Do turn that toast, Ward!" she added. And to the maid, "Mr. Carter's fruit, Mollie, please."

Breakfast was the least formal of all the informal meals at Crownhills. Bottomley was never in evidence until the late luncheon; mail and newspapers, and the morning gaiety of the young people all made for cheerful disorder.

"If you're going into town at ten, Father, we'll go, too," Nina suggested. "But I can't," she was heard to murmur in an undertone to the disappointed Bruce. "I have to get clothes, don't I?"

"Oh, Brazil—Brazil—Brazil!" the youth said, disgustedly. "I hate the sound of it!"

"These clothes are for the ranch," Nina said, smiling. Both her father and Harriet augured well from the youth's instantly transformed face.

"Say—honestly?" he asked, ineloquently, with an irrepressible grin.

"I think so," Nina murmured. The rest of their conversation was inaudible; they presently wandered forth to finish it on the tennis court. Ward followed his grandmother upstairs, and Harriet and Richard were left to finish their breakfast alone.

"You look tired," Harriet said, rising, when his omelette came in, and pausing beside the head of the table for an instant on her way to the pantry.

"I had a bad night," Richard admitted. "But that's not all you're going to have for breakfast?" he protested.

"I never have more!" Harriet smiled. "I'm sorry about the bad night," said she.

"I couldn't help thinking—" Richard began. "What is it, Mollie?" he added, harshly, to the hovering maid.

"Nothing—no matter—sir," Mollie stammered, retreating. "It was just that the man about the sheep came"

—she faltered.

"The sheep?" Richard echoed, frowning. Harriet laughed softly.

"Oh, yes," she said. "I told you I had ordered two or three young sheep," she explained, to keep our lawns cropped. They look so adorable, and they do it so nicely! Has he got them, Mollie?" she added, eagerly.

"Oh, I must see them! I'll be back in exactly five minutes, Mr. Carter," she said.

"What are we supposed to do with them in winter?" Richard asked, smiling.

"Oh, they will have a little—a little hyge!" she answered, readily. "You'll— you'll like them!" And he heard her joyous voice following Mollie away.

Richard pushed back his plate and looked irresolutely after her. Then suddenly he rose and walked through the pantry, asking two startled maids for Mrs. Carter. Etelka had been several years in the house without ever seeing "him" in this neighborhood before.

Richard crossed a sunshiny brick-walled yard, where linen was drying, and went through a brick gateway that gave on a neglected little lane. "The lane had once been the driveway for a carriage and a prancing pair, but there were only riding horses at Crownhills now, and three of these were looking over the wall at the grass-grown road. And Richard found Harriet here.

She was on her knees, in the pleasant green shadow of the old sycamores and maples; her back was toward him. She was looking up into the face of the old staid man, Trotter, who stood before her, his crooked, dwarfed old figure still further bent, as he held two strong young ewes by their thick, woolly shoulders.

As Trotter gave him a respectful good morning, Harriet sprang to her feet and whirled about and Richard saw the woody stiff legs of a very young lamb dangling from her arms and the lamb's weak little black-rubber face close to the beautiful face he loved.

"Oh, Richard!" she said, carried away by her own delight. "Look at it! Isn't it the sweetest darling baby that ever was! Oh, you sweet!" she said, putting her lips to the little woolly head.

"You are!" Richard said quite without premeditation.

Harriet laughed, surrendered the little lamb to Trotter and followed the old man's departure to the stables with an anxious warning.

"They're to have this little enclosure all to themselves," she explained to Richard when they were alone. "He's going to build them a little shed!" And as Richard, his back leaning against the low brick wall, made no immediate attempt to move, she looked at him expectantly. "Shall we go back?" she suggested.

"That sounded very pleasant to me," Richard said with deliberate irrelevance.

Harriet looked at him in puzzled silence.

"I mean your calling me Richard," he said.

She flushed brightly and laughed. "Did I? I always think of you as Richard," she explained.

"So you abandon me on the Brazil trip?" he asked, watching her seriously.

"Well—?" Harriet shrugged. "I thought you had to go," she added. "I'm—I'll confess I'm disappointed. But to have Nina want to do anything is such a relief to me that I'm only going to think of that!"

"Yes, I have to go," Richard said slowly. "I must be there for a month at least. But I'm disappointed, too. I got thinking of it, in the night—I couldn't sleep! I'm disappointed, too!"

He fell silent. "I wish," he said hesitatingly, "that you had not told me that you—you don't feel that you— are going to love me!" he said. "I love you with all my heart and soul. It—well, it's all I think of now. I want—"

He turned and picking an ivy leaf from the wall looked at it intently for a moment and tore it apart before he let it fall. "However," he said philosophically, smiling at her, "we'll let that wait!"

Harriet, close to him, laid one hand upon his shoulder.

"You misunderstood me," she said steadily. "What I said was that I could not love you more than I do!"

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

Aren't you—ever—going to understand?"

For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes.

"Harriet, do you mean it?" Richard said then, simply.

"Yes," she answered. "I mean it! I've always meant it. I've always loved you, I think. No man could want any woman to love him more!"

The blue eyes so near his own were misty with sudden tears. In the deserted little lane, in the blue summer morning and the green shade of the sycamores, they were alone. Richard put his arms about her.

And for a moment he held all the beauty and fragrance and laughter and tears that was Harriet close to his heart: the soft hair tumbled, the brown hair young hand resting on his shoulder, the warm cheek against his own.

A breeze rustled through the branches high above them; the blue river, beyond the brick wall, flowed on in an even sheet of satin; two birds looped the enclosure in a sudden twittering flight; and from the stable region came the plaintive bleating of a mother sheep. But to Harriet and Richard the world was all their own.

"My wife!" said Richard Carter. (THE END.)

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Thedford's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficacy of Thedford's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver."

"I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Thedford's Black-Draught liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Thedford's. E. S.

ENDORSED AT HOME

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Hickman Citizen

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger, can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Hickman adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

Clara Armstrong, Fulton St., Hickman, says: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Several years ago I had trouble with my kidneys. My back gave out and there was a dull, nagging pain across the small of it. The muscles of my back were lame and hurt when I stooped or lifted. Doan's Kidney Pills put an end to the trouble and I haven't had need of them since."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Armstrong had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

REMINISCENCES

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

While ploughing in a field near New Madrid, Mo., a farmer unearthed a box of jewels that had been buried for many years.

"July barbecues are now in order."

"The candidates are making a grand roundup" today.

J. T. Stephens assumed control of the Hickman postoffice.

"The hum of the threshing machine can be heard in every neighborhood."

Hickman buyers were offering $12 for No. 2 wheat.

"There will be an eclipse of the sun July 29, visible, if clear, all over the United States."

"The young folks enjoyed a pleasant social party and dance at the residence of William Sauer, about three miles from town, Wednesday night."

"Sid Hamby, a young man who lives in the country and who is well known about town, accidentally shot himself with a pistol Saturday night while attempting to eject a shell from the weapon."

Jack Upshaw, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this county, died at his home, two miles south of town.

TEN YEARS AGO

There was great expectation of the C. M. & G. extending its road from Hickman to Metropolis, Ill.

"The cool, damp weather of the past ten days has been anything but beneficial to the cotton and corn crops of this section."

"By the side of the ball park, to the East St. Louis Cotton Oil Co. Hickman loses the training grounds for Joe Cantillon's Minneapolis base ball team."

"The two big cotton gins at Hickman were sold Monday to the Roberts Cotton Oil Co. of Memphis."

"A. W. Daxie of southwest of town reports an epidemic of hog cholera in his neighborhood."

"J. R. Wright and Sid Hamby are now operating the transfer from the new depot in West Hickman."

The L. C. was seeking to gain control of the C. M. & G. railroad.

William H. Taft was nominated for president by the Republicans. The Progressives nominated Theodore Roosevelt. The Democratic convention had just met in Baltimore.

RAISES SWEET POTATOES BY ARTIFICIAL HEAT

Elmer Clements delivered three truck loads of sweet potato plants to the local postoffice for shipment to various states by parcel post. Tuesday Mr. Clements needed 250 bushels of sweet potatoes on about one acre of land. He has constructed a network of pipes through the ground in such a way that the beds are heated by heat conducted through the pipes from the furnaces which he has erected at one end of the land, and his smokestacks are placed at the other end in such a way that the heat of the furnaces is carried under the ground, thus causing artificial heat for the big bed of potatoes. On Monday of this week he had sixteen hands employed pulling and packing the plants for shipment.—Hawesville Clarion.

SCHOOL FUND, $6.10 PER CAPITA

Every school district in Kentucky will receive $6.10 for each child of school age within its borders during the next year, announces State Superintendent George Colvin.

This is the same per capita distribution of state funds as was made last year. The school fund last year contained $4,549,856.75, and will be slightly less next year.

CALOMEL IS A DANGEROUS DRUG

Next Dose May Salivate You, Loosen Teeth or Start Rheumatism.

Calomel is mercury, quicksilver. It crumbles into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children, because it is perfectly harmless and cannot salivate.

Certain changes in the character of wood which normally take place only after years of drying are, by a new chemical process, produced within 24 hours. Thereafter, when the moisture that may still be left has evaporated, the wood becomes harder and more durable than by the aging process.

YOU MUST REGISTER

If you want to vote at the regular election next November you must register on July 10 or 11, because there is a law on the statute books that says you must do so, and that is presumed to be sufficient reason. You are only required to register one time unless you move from one precinct to another, and then you only have to secure a certificate to the effect that you have been regularly registered in your original precinct.

Dr. Fakes, a well known and experienced physician of Hickman, Ky., is making arrangements to move to Hixsonville. He has practiced medicine for many years in Kentucky and is said to have an excellent reputation as a doctor. He will have offices with Dr. P. P. Ferguson, on East Main street, Hixsonville (Ark.) Long Term Farm Loans

I am an approved abstractor of the Louisville Joint Stock Land Bank, which makes long term farm loans on good land in Fulton county, in amounts from $2,500 to $35,000. Small application fee charged, but no commission. Rate six per cent. Thirty-three year amortization plan. Loans can be paid at any interest paying period after five years, or before, by paying a small compromise fee. Ample funds. Quirky service. If in need of a loan come in and see me. This bank will not make loans on rough and unimproved lands.

III. WIRELESS TELEPHONY

In many ways, all the principles and laws of wireless telephony apply equally well to radio telephony, but, in other ways, there are great differences between the two. In the first place, the vibrations or waves sent out by the wireless telegraph transmitter are interrupted as they are produced by the vibrator of a spark coil and while the flow of the oscillations or waves may be so rapid that they appear as a steady stream, yet there is really a distinct pause after each one. If a telephone transmitter and receiver were attached to the ordinary wireless instruments used in telegraphy, the sounds or vibrations of the voice would vary the path of the electrical oscillations and the same variations would be produced on the receiver. But, owing to the fact that the waves are interrupted and are not continuous, the words or sounds would be cut up into sections which would be meaningless, although such sounds as music, bells, whistling etc., might be recognizable. In fact sounds of this sort frequently have been heard over ordinary wireless telegraph instruments. Hence it is easy to see that the only reason why all sounds cannot be carried through space by ordinary wireless telegraph apparatus is because of the interrupted or broken waves, whereas, if these waves were continuous or were so incredibly rapid as to appear continuous, the sounds they transmitted could easily be heard and understood. Therefore, the real fundamental key to successful wireless telephony lies in producing what are known as continuous waves and it is to the perfection and control of such waves that radio telephony owes much of its rapid advancement.

The accompanying figures, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 illustrate just how the interrupted telegraph currents and the continuous waves carry sounds. Thus 1 represents the variations in vibrations in a certain word, 2, the intermittent oscillations of the wireless telegraph sender and 3, the way the word would be broken and interrupted by being transmitted by means of such interrupted waves. Figure 4, on the other hand, shows the continuous waves of the wireless telegraph transmitter; 5, the sound waves of a word and 6, the way the continuous waves, interrupted by the words would appear. By studying these diagrams you can easily see the difference between the word broken up as in figure 3 and flowing smoothly as in figure 6. It must be borne in mind, however, that whereas the sounds of the voice, of music, etc., cannot be satisfactorily sent or received by wireless telegraph instruments, yet wireless telegrams can be sent to perfection, and can be perfectly received, over wireless telegraph instruments. Indeed, the very best transmitting radiophone sets serve the best for sending telegraphic messages, the only difference being that for the former the continuous high frequency waves are used, whereas, when sending code messages by telegraph, the waves are broken or "chopped" by suitable instruments and a key which opens and closes the circuit.

In using wireless telephony, just as in wireless telegraphy, there must be two separate units known as transmitters and receivers and a transmitter can be used only for sending and a receiver for receiving. As the sending or transmitting apparatus of the wireless telephone is far more complicated than the receiving instruments, as the greatest interest in wireless telephony lies in receiving the messages, songs, etc., sent broadcast from large sending stations, and as the receivers are very simple and easy to understand and to construct, we will put the cart before the horse, so to speak, and consider the receiving end of radio telephony before we take up the sending end.

DEATH OF MRS. RITHE HARPER

The following article was brought to us too late to be printed in last week's issue.

Mrs. Rithe Harper died at her home in the Beech vicinity Sunday afternoon June 14 at 5:30 o'clock, after an illness which had its inception in an attack of pneumonia during the early part of last winter.

Mrs. Harper was a sister of Mrs. Emma Glover and Austin Maupin, who survive her. She was born March 22, 1841, and on January 1, 1861, she was married to Smith Latimer. Of this union there were two children, viz: W. H. Latimer and Mrs. Bobby Hale. Mrs. Hale is the wife of Ben Hale of Hickman. Smith Latimer, husband of the deceased, enlisted in the service of the Confederacy and lost his life for the Southland. On January 21, 1872, Mrs. Latimer was married to Sam Latimer. To this union one child was born—Walter H. Harper. Sam Harper died some years ago. The three children and the brother and sister named above are the immediate surviving relatives.

Mrs. Harper professed faith in the Christian religion at an early age and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Beech, where she resided during the years of a long and useful life.

So ends the earthly pilgrimage of another one of God's chosen people. There is other but no better assurance of this than the words, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Mrs. Harper committed her life to the service of the Lord. She was a woman of many graces of mind and soul. She was devoted to those whom God had given to her keeping, and in turn they worshiped the good woman. Her passing leaves the wounds of separation, but in a glorified state she is welcomed by those who have passed over the river, and there she awaits to welcome those who are to come in the hereafter. Blessings to her memory.

Services were held at Beech Church Monday, conducted by the pastor, and the remains were interred at Beech Cemetery—Union City Commercial.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarhal Deafness, by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless its inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarhal Deafness cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. All Druggists Tel. Circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

TIPTONVILLE HAS BLAZE

Fire broke out last Saturday morning in an old one-story brick building owned by George Haysen in Tiptonville, and razed for more than one and a half hours before being finally brought under control.

Stanley & Griffith's barber shop was located in the front part of the destroyed building, and a laundry agency and bath was maintained in the rear. The damage to the building and fixtures is estimated at approximately $2,000, and is partially covered by insurance.

Avoiding the Abrupt Negative.

"A man must learn to say, 'No,'" remarked the moralist.

"Not a man in my position," replied Senator Scrubbin. "There are requests, of course, that must be refused, but one of the arts of politics is breaking the news as gently and deliberately as possible."

Conversation.

"Modern life requires no profundity."

"No?"

"No. Some people have one remark to cover all occasions. They say 'How do you get that way?' And when they have said that they think they have said all."

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S FAST TASTE GULL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strengthening tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or digest the parasite. Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

and to all persons whose property is or may be affected whether the same be inside or outside of said district, that the Board of Appraisers heretofore appointed herein has filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court their report, in which the said Board of Appraisers states and shows the benefits, damages and the assessments of benefits made upon and against the several tracts and parcels of land and other property located in said district, the classification thereof and their appraisal of the value of the several parcels of land necessary to be taken for rights of way, holding basins, pumping stations and other work of said district, both within and without said district, or which will be affected by the making of said improvement. Said proceeding is set for hearing on the 10th day of July, 1922, same being the first day of the next July term of said court. Said report is on file in my office and subject to inspection by all persons whomsoever. All persons desiring to file exceptions thereto are required to do so on or before the 10th day of July, 1922, same being the first day of the July term of said court. Your failure to file exceptions to said report on or before the above named date will be construed by the court that you have no reasons to offer why said report should not be confirmed.

Done by me as Clerk of the Fulton County Court on this, the 21st day of June, 1922.

O. C. Henry, Clerk.

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance.

Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said, "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.
